THE INSURANCE CONGRESS.

SEVENTH DAY'S PROCEEDINGS.

Au Adjournment Until October Decided Upon-An Excursion and Dinner Afloat-Speeches by Delegates Erastus Brooks, William Barnes, Judges Greene and Davis, General Shaler and Others.

The Convention met yesterday morning at the rooms of the Fire Underwriters, Nos. 15d and 168 Brondway, President Miller in the chair, and Mr. Occott, secretary, proceeded to read the report on blanks, where he had lett off on the previous day, but the consideration of it was deferred until it is

Mr. Noves, of Connecticut, moved for the anpointment of a committee to consider and report as to what changes in the law should be made by the various Legislatures to secure wise and harmonious action concerning their own local insurance comstates, and to report at such time as they may deem proper. Laid upon the table.

Mr. BRINKERHOFF, of Illinois, from the Special Committee on adjournment, reported as follows:-

Committee on adjournment, reported as follows:—
Your committee to whom was referred the subject of the adjournment, would recommend the adoption of the following preamble and resolutions:—
Whereas the proceedings of this session have been rendered especially profitable, on account of the presentation of exceedingly valuable papers upon the various subjects before as by the learned and distinguished representatives of the several insurance and commercial interests; and whereas it is very desirable that the deepgates from the several States have presented to them in printed form all the information gathered together by this Convention and its reveral committees, and that sufficient time be granted to each one to consider in a caim and deliberative way many of the subjects under consideration before final section is taken by the Convention; and whereas several of the States deeply interested in all that pertains to the matters before this Convention; and whereas several of the States deeply interested in all that pertains to the matters before this Convention are unrepresented in the Convention, and ast its especially desirable that every State should and our deliberations by the convention; and advise of those charged with the secution of her insurance statutes; therefore be it.

Resolved, That this Convention adjourn from Thursday, the lat day of June, until Weineriay, the ISh of October, to meet in this city, and that the scretary be requested to have printed, in proper form, all the proceedings, reports and appears presented to the Convention, and that he furnish each member with copies thereof; and further be it.

Resolved, That the President of this Convention appoint a committee of three, to whom shall be referred the subject of making this Convention permanent, and if considered by them desirable that they report to the adjourned session in October the constitution and bylaws for the government thereof; and further be it.

Resolved, That the President of this Convention lay before the proper officials of t

Mr. WEBB, of Kansas, opposed an adjournment and replied that the work of the Convention would not amount to much. It appeared to him that the Convention commenced wrong end foremost; that they should have taken the cases of all the States into consideration before entering upon other busi-General MILLER spoke feelingly in defence of the Convention from having commenced wrongly. He

General MILLER spoke feelingly in defence of the was in favor of adjourning to meet again at any place and time that will suit the convenience of the greatest number. The resolution was adopted with the amendment that, when the Convention adjourns it be until the 18th October. The Convention then adjourned to participate in an excursion tendered them by the insurance companies. Repairing to the foot of Dey street the steamer Josephine received the delegates and other guests and started down the bay. Owing to the severe fog and storm that prevailed the party, which was composed of as joiny fellows as ever popped a cork or swallowed chowder, were deprived of a view of the rich scenery lining the bay; but after the sun had come out and the log had lifted the steamer headed her prow up the East river and ran out into the Sound, where she cruised for several hours. The time was well improved, however; for Delmonico, with his hampers of the good things of life and innumerable baskets of whic, was on hand, and with his usual grace catered to the cravings of the inward man. The Seventh Regiment Band discoursed their sweetest music, and wit and wisdom flowed in copious tenor and bass from the party.

Mr. Hope, of the Underwriters, acted as chairman, and toasted President Miller, who responded in an eloquent and brief speech, in which he referred to the work of the Convention in fitting terms, and expressed the belief that it would largely protect the interests of the public, who insure their lives and property.

Dr. Atkinson, of Kansas, responded for the South, interests of the public, who insure their lives and property.

Dr. Atkinson, of Kansas, responded for the South, Mr. Pillsbury, of New Hampshire, for the East; Mr. Row, or Michigan, for the West, and Mr. Kelsey, of httle Jersey, for the Central States, in nappy strains. The insurance interests were next honored, Judge Davis, of the Mutual Insurance Company, responding, in which he welcomed the delegates to the city, the spoke of life insurance as an institution that is growing rapidly into public confidence, and, with management marked by great prudence, integrity and honesty, the public would continue to take advantages of it, as a protection to their families. Alreacy the money invested in insurance poincies exceeds the national debt, and as the people become educated to its importance it would assume gigantic proportions.

Aireacy the money Invested in insurance poincies exceeds the national debt, and as the people become educated to its importance it would assume gigantic proportions.

Judge A. Greene, counsel of the Equitable Life Insurance Company, was called out and made an effective speech. He stated that he had received a note from President Alexander, of the company, requesting him to represent the company in paying respects to the delegation, who, he felt, was engaged in a great work. The President's neart was in the business of providing for the widow and the orphan, and his pride was in the Equitable. Air, Greene proceeded to speak of the work of the Convention, which eventually would accomplish much. If no other result be attained by the Convention it would be worth all the trouble that the Insurance Superintendents of other States should, by personal intercourse with Mr. George W. Miller, have become assured of the ability, the integrity and the watchfulness with which ne guarded the insurance companies of the States, and whatever rumors interested parties might spread over the land there was a faithful and able Argus-eyed official watching over their interests and those of the insured. What the public ask for is certainty that the companies will perform their contracts in the fluture and accomplish economical management. The people are beginning to take hold of lire insurance; but already several of the American companies are superior in integrity, ability and energy to the companies of the British Isles. He stated that comparison between the standard of Great Britain and the one he represented snowed a ratio of expenditure as regards insured in favor of the American company. He concluded by thanking the delegates for their efforts to settle conflicting interests.

Mr. was Barnses, of the American Association, responded for the fire branch, and gave many statistics showing their rapid expansion in a business point of view, and integrity and sound policy of doing business.

Speecnes were made also by Speaker Hitchman, monico's best estate, nated and witty.

The Convention will resume its deliberations at Fire Underwriters' rooms, No. 156 Broadway,

THE WILLIAMSEURG POST OFFICE.

A Disbonest Letter Carrier Arrested for "Go-

Up and Makes a Confession. John D. Boyce, formerly a letter carrier employed the Raymond street fail awaiting examination on charge of "going through" two money letters entrusted to him for delivery. For months past Postmaster Tailot had information that letters reaching his office for distribution and delivery were never delivered, and he put the facts before Mr. R. K. Sharretts, of the General Post Office, who immediately set to work to find out the cause, resorting to many expedients to gain a clue. On Saturday last the officers of the Williamsburg office discovered at least one of the thieves in the person of John D. Boyce, letter carrier, and they immediately placed him in charge of a government officer. On Monday last Boyce was arraigned before Commissioner Jones on a charge of embezziement and was committed to the Raymona street jail to await examination. Since then Boyce has made a clean breast of it, confessing that he had taken a large number of letters containing small remittances during the two years that he has been employed in the department.

Boyce is a young married man, of good family. He was formerly in the army and has resided for several years in the Fliteenth ward. He was highly recommended for the position he disgraced, the present Postmaster, Mr. C. C. Taibot, being among those who signed his recommendation. His surcties are responsible for his thefts to the amount of $1,000, but the extent of his stealings has not transpired. charge of "going through" two money letters en-

THE LATEST WILLIAMSBURG OUTRAGE.

John Evans, the young man who murderously assaulted Andrew Fisher with a smoothing fron in Williamsburg on Tuesday last, was committed by Williamsburg on Tuesday last, was committed by Justice Eames yesterday to await the result of Fisher's injuries, Dr. Feeley having pronounced them to be of a probably fatal enaracter. Evans claims to be a deputy sherin, and says that he committed the assault while in the discharge of his duty, Fisher having first resisted his authority by force, OUR INDIAN VISITORS.

Where They Are, What They Have Been Doing and What They Mean to Do-Au Irish Girl's Admiration of the Red Man. The Indian chiefs now staying at the Grand Cen-ral Hotel spent a very dull day yesterday. They were unable to go out, and as their resources for hotel amusement were not of the most varied character they sat in solemn, stolld dulness all day in their pariors.

Little Raven, Powder Face and Bird Chief, of the Arapanoes, sat by themselves in one room, and these three mightinesses have very large heads and were much ornamented with brass and wire ornaments. Little Robe and Stone Calf, of the Cheyennes, and Buffalo Good, of the Washitas, in physiognomy and general appearance are rather less scalplugly inclined. The chiefs are under the care of United States Indian Agent Mahlon Stubbs, and are assisted in understanding the white men and their ways by their interpreters, alessrs. John Smith, Philip McCusker and Edward Geary-the last named being a half-breed Indian himself.

Agent Smith, with his charge, arrived in this city from Washington on Saturday evening last, On Sunday he aired them in Central Park, where the chiefs were delighted with the menagerie, and with the monkeys particularly. In fact, since the arrival of the dark-skinned neroes among the white faces the only time they have given loose rein to their barbarous admiration was when they saw the monkeys in Central Park. and bought numberiess gewgaws with the money presented to them by the Indian Bureau at Washington. On Tuesday they went to Long Branch and were stondly indifferent to the beauties of the trip, being merely passingly lulled into admirabeing merely passingly lulled into admiration when they found spread before their gaze the grand and gorgeous view of the Atlantio ocean. This evening they are to have a "reception" at Cooper Institute, under the auspices of the United States Indian Commission, when they will show themselves to all New Yorkers who may be curious to see them and hear, by means of their interpreters, what they have to say. Distinguished pale faces will also say complimentary things appropriate to the occasion, and the pleasantest results may, of course, be expected to follow from the proceedings.

The Indian cotets because paie faces will also say complimentary things appropriate to the occasion, and the pleasantest results may, of course, be expected to follow from the proceedings.

The Indian cniefs, however, are very wily and very cunning, and, except when speaking to each other, have the sense to keep their minds to themselves. Whether it is a fault on their part or a virtue they most determinedly refuse to be 'interviewed.' A Herald reporter yesterday afternoon had the distinguished honor of shaking hands with some of the chiefs, and was most politely received by them. Some pantonimic signs after the introduction passed between their excellences and Mr. Smith, and the reporter was then informed they wanted to know who he was. The notebook and pencil which were in the hands of the reporter, were pointed to him by way of explanation, but as the rascals saw the well known Herald yellow leaves they eyed each other in the most suspicious manner, and immediately relapsed into confounded silence. All efforts to get the visitors to expaliate on their opinions of Grant and his Cabinet, the pale faces in general, the Grand Central Hotel in particular and Gotham and the Gothamites as a last resource, were lost. Seeing the state of affairs the reporter shook lands again, this time with a warmth equal to the circumstances, and he then retired.

After leaving the apartments of the aboriginals the reporter was quietly awaiting the appearance of the elevator when there stepped before him a very pretty girl, of Irish nativity, who told him if he was in a hurry that he had better pull the signal bell. With this turn in affairs and feeling great relief at the sight of such a pleasant looking pair face, the reporter expressed himself not disinclined to tarry, and hoped that the elevator would lose time somehow. It was perfectly legitimate to find out as much information as possible about the Indian chiefs, and to this end the following colloquy doth tend, and is instructive on its own merits:—

"Peggy, sir."

"Peggy, sir."

"Peggy, sir."

"Pergy, what do you think of these chaps round here!"
"What chaps, sir!"
"The Indian chiefs."
"Wouldn't I wisn they were gone!"
"Why so!"
"Oh, they're perfectly horrible; sure they're not Christians; they're haytnens."
"Do you think them good looking!"
"The Lord protect us! They're like wild animals. If I met wan of 'em on a corridor by himself I'd think he was the divil."
"Well, you see they have a good deal of black skin about them, but they're fond of their squaws—their wives."

"An' are their wives like thimselves?"

about them, but they're fond of their squaws—their wives."

"An" are their wives like thimselves?"

"You would hardly know one from the other."

"Och, bad look to them; they're not women at all, at all."

"I assure you, Peggy, they are; but have you ever conversed with any of the indians?"

"I assure you, Peggy, they are; but have you ever conversed with any of the indians?"

"I assure you, Peggy, they are; but have you ever conversed with any of the indians?"

"Well, the interpreters might have told you something of them or asked you to wait on them no?"

"They may think what they like about me, and as for the "terpraters, they may prate away till they're tired. One is just as bad as the other. 'Till me yer company and I'll till who you are,' is an ould sayin.'"

"I shouldn't myself like to meet them on their reserves without my Uncle Samuel being with me."

"An' what good would anybody's uncle do with the likes of them."

"You nave neard, I suppose, that they scalp the white people out on the Plains?"

"You don't say so! They scalp 'em, eh? An' what's that?"

"Well, they catch them by the hair of the head, throw them down on their knees, then take the tomahawk—a great big knife—and with one blow take off all the scalp off the head and then tear the skin down the back. Hoy's that?"

"My the Lord be merciful to us! An are thim the murtherers I'm waiten on for the last three days Ah, then, Pegg O'Reagan, if it has come to that with you it's a nice, daycent thing for you, indeed. Them divis will lave this corridor or I will lave this corridor or I will lave this house, and as sure as I'm a livin'"—

The elevator had now come up and Peggy was left to finish her remarks, a more angry, but a wiser woman, than she had been. But the chiefs really are most awful looking personages, and Pegg's wrath and repugnance are not very jureasonable after all.
